

Dominatus Pattern Dreadnought

Points: 500

When dying isn't an option for a devoted Space Marine, they are placed in a Dreadnought Armoured Walker. These adamantium armoured battlemachines with their integrated life-support systems are amongst the Space Marines' most revered relics. And as such it is considered one of the greatest honours to be encased in its cold hull while continuing to serve the Immortal Emperor. Many variations on the normal Dreadnought exist, most of them merely using different weapon configurations. Yet there are some chapters that use entirely different adaptations of the walker. One such example is the Furioso Dreadnought utilized by the Blood Angels. This engine of destruction has completely abandoned ranged combat, relying on heavy flamers and brutal force instead. One of the most uncommon adaptations is the Dominatus Pattern Dreadnought, based on an ancient Adeptus Mechanicus blueprint that was recovered during the Great Crusade, this Dreadnought class combines powerful ranged weaponry with increased durability not unsimilar to that of other Imperial warmachines like the Baneblade. Extremely rare, only the greatest and most ancient of warriors of the Space Marines will be taken to be fitted into the Dominatus Dreadnought. No more than two have so far been encountered in battle at the same time. But whenever the Dominatus is deployed it brings carnage and destruction to the foes of Mankind both on and above the battlefield.
